Township seeks probe on truck

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

The Venice Township road supervisor's pickup truck was returned to the township Monday, setting off an investigation involving former Road Supervisor Ed Lee Salmond.

Salmond said Tuesday he "welcomed an investigation" and said "during the whole time I was road commissioner I did exactly what a road commissioner was supposed to do."

The pickup truck, missing its engine, transmission, drive train and front wheels, was recovered from a field in Eagle Park by Township Supervisor Andy Economy. Economy said he found the truck Monday partially buried and spent more than two hours digging it out and hauling it away on a car carrier.

The township recently spent about $1,000 for a new engine for the truck and several trustees said they believed the township had also recently purchased tires and other equipment — as well as gasoline — for the truck.

On Monday the town board voted unanimously to formally request that Salmond explain the missing engine and the disposition of other township equipment.

In the same vote, the board also asked that Salmond, who was defeated for reelection in April by Robert Wiley, explain the circumstances surrounding a township-paid trip he did not take and the "excessive" salaries and other payments made to road workers in April.

According to the township, Salmond was paid $400 in August to attend a conference in Washington, D.C., but did not attend. In November, Salmond reimbursed the township $100.

In April, Salmond's employees were paid more than $6,000 in salaries and "services rendered," leaving the township road fund with a balance of $675 and an outstanding debt of $1,000. The town board requested that Salmond provide documentation of the work and services performed.

Salmond said he agreed that he still owed the township $300 for the conference he didn't attend. He said he was unable to attend because of a conflict with his employment as a bus driver for the Venice School District.

Karate credited with saving child's life

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

When Brett Hanke's daughter was 12 years old, Ken Po saved her life.

Ken Po is not Barbie's boyfriend, but a Chinese "combat" style of karate developed by monks between 4,000 and 5,000 years ago.

Much more recently, however, about seven years ago, Ken Po techniques saved Cheryl Schmidt's life.

Hanke said that Schmidt, his daughter, was walking from his home in the 2100 block of Cleveland Boulevard to a friend's house nearby when a carload of "burnouts" offered to take her for a ride.

When the girl politely declined the offer, one of the passengers exited the car and grabbed Cheryl by the wrists.

The girl, who had taken very little karate training at the time, instinctively utilized a basic technique that temporarily — yet very effectively — incapacitated her would-be attacker. She then ran to the safety of her friend's home.

"She had enough training that she didn't have to think about it; she just did it," Hanke said.

Hanke, a third-degree black belt, said there are many myths about karate, mostly perpetuated by Bruce Lee movies and the popularity of animated Saturday morning television characters, the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.

The word "karate" means "open hand," and Hanke, who is also the city's public works director, teaches the Ken Po style at Tracy's Karate School at 3715 Nameoki Road.

Heroine

Woman's quick action cited

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Kelly Green is a heroine. Green, 19, of the 2000 block of Clark Avenue, has been given a citizen's commendation by the Granite City Police department for her actions during a fire in the 2300 block of Emmet Avenue on May 29.

Green and her friend, Sarah Patton, were passing through the area in a car just after midnight when they noticed that a wooden privacy fence was on fire, according to a police report.

When Green saw the fire, she quickly went to a nearby house and called the fire department.

"I just did what every responsible citizen would have," she said.

The incident "could easily have developed into a tragedy" due to strong winds and large evergreen trees nearby, said Patrolman Craig Knight, who was at the scene.

Historic helicopter added to museum

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

For sheer terror, few sights can match being on the wrong end of a Cobra helicopter attack.

The slim faces of the gunships, looking like large mutants of their namesakes, appear out of nowhere — popping out of tree lines, over hillsides or just over the horizon — in deadly silence.

Bright flashes burst from the twin mini-guns below their noses — fangs of fire — and rockets fly from the rocket pods mounted on the sides. The silence grows deafening.

Only as the targets are hit, after it is much too late, comes the sound — Whoomp, whoomp, whoomp.

The sound rolls over in waves that continue long after the gunships, which disappear as quickly as they appear, are gone.

The AH-1 Cobra series of helicopters — tank killers — is so feared that the former Warsaw Pact forces counted a battalion of them equal to an armored brigade of tanks.

Soon, the Cobras will no longer be in the U.S. Army's inventory. The new Apache helicopter is said to be everything the Cobra is and more.

But for the thousands of American soldiers and Marines serving in Vietnam who cheered the arrival of a Cobra platoon through tears of joy — and for the thousands of North Vietnamese regulars and irregulars who greeted it with more conventional tears — the Cobra attack helicopter can never be replaced.

It was the infantryman's strongest ally and, next to the medical-evacuation Huey helicopter, his best friend.

Most of the Army's Cobras are being sold to foreign armies, but the very first Cobra ever produced will make Granite City its retirement home.

On the back of a Smithway Xpress flatbed trailer, AH-1S Cobra number one from Fort Drum, N.Y., arrived at the U.S. Army's Melvin Price State Center in Granite City on Monday to join the other historic military vehicles of the Armed Forces Museum.

The helicopter, currently the only Cobra in private hands, had been designated for the Smithsonian Museum in Washington, D.C.

But Capt. Carol Venable of the Armed Forces Museum said the Smithsonian turned it down after

Police shoot, kill dog

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Unable to subdue a dog running wild and terrorizing pedestrians near the St. Elizabeth Parish picnic early Sunday morning, police officers returned later in the morning and shot the dog dead.

"That dog has been going after everyone in the neighborhood," said a woman who was chased by the dog Sunday morning.

While an officer shot twice at the dog with his service revolver in the dark early Sunday morning — after the dog attacked him — the officer was unable to determine if he had hit his mark, according to a police report.

Police then returned in the light of day, found the dog — still unleashed — and shot him dead with a shotgun, a police spokesman said.

Officers dispatched to the 2100 block of Manley Avenue shortly after midnight Sunday met with a couple who said the dog chased them home from the picnic.

The 56-year-old woman, who resides in the same block, said that

Two accused of kidnapping say they are teens' scapegoats

Two brothers accused of kidnapping two Indiana teen-agers and keeping them in a bunker said they are being used as scapegoats by the teens.

"If you want to know the real story, this is bull," George Shanks said Friday before being shooed away by a sheriff's deputy in the courtroom of Madison County Associate Judge Lola Maddox. "They ran away from home and that was it. There's nothing more to it," Shanks said.

Shanks, 23, who gave an address in the 400 block of Church Street in East Alton, and his brother Robert Shanks, 20, of Moro, are charged in the bizarre episode that police say included a rape of a 13-year-old girl and a 19-year-old Indiana man in an abandoned underground ammunition bunker on Olin Corp. property.

How can I be charged with this? Robert Shanks asked the judge in his initial appearance on two counts of aggravated kidnapping. "I'm not sure what I'm going to do."

After he was told he could spend up to 30 years in prison if convicted, Robert Shanks, who sat next to his brother in court, said, "I might as well kill myself. The police asked me some questions and I told them everything I knew. They told me I could leave and the next thing I know, they arrest me."

George Shanks is charged with raping the 13-year-old and holding both teens against their will at knifepoint. If convicted of all charges, he could face up to 90 years in prison.

In interviews, the Shankses said the teenagers made up the abduction story to avoid getting in trouble with their parents.

"We know so," Robert Shanks said.

"The (13-year-old) got us in jail and she's laughing about it because she doesn't want Mommy to find out she ran away," George Shanks said. "We didn't do nothing."

The teens were reportedly held against their will in a 10-square-foot ammunition bunker on property owned by Olin. They escaped from the bunker last Wednesday and went to a neighbor's house to get help from police, authorities said.

A 16-year-old girl also stayed in the bunker, apparently by her own choice, police said.

The Madison County State's Attorney's Office filed a juvenile petition Friday to charge the 16-year-old with delinquency. She was being held in the county Juvenile Detention Home.

"We're not sure of her role in this, whether she was a victim or a part of this," Illinois State Police Capt. Wayne Watson said Friday. "Things like this that come up kind of quickly take a while to sort out."

George Shanks reportedly picked up the 16-year-old and the teenagers in Jasper, Ind., in his tractor-trailer.

On the way to East Alton, the 13-year-old and the 19-year-old reportedly told Shanks they wanted to go back home, but Shanks allegedly refused and drove to East Alton, where they met his brother, police said.

The teens stayed one night in the house of Shanks' mother on Church Street, police said. The teenagers said that around Memorial Day Shanks took them to the concrete bunker, where they were fed bologna and Sweet-Tarts candy while being held captive, police said.

George Shanks said he is married to the 16-year-old's mother in Indiana. He said he also has two other stepchildren. He was arrested for child molestation two years ago after an incident with the 16-year-old.

He told the judge he would need a court-appointed attorney because he hasn't worked in three months. He is also facing a bad-check charge.

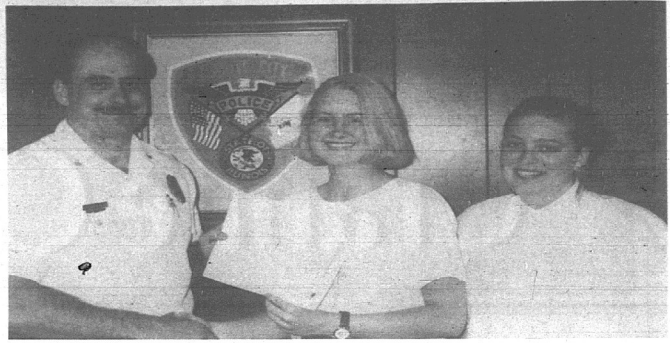

Robert Shanks, who said he was scheduled to begin a dry-walling job, said he is unsure if he will seek a public defender or hire an attorney.

The Indiana Highway Patrol may also seek charges against George Shanks because the 19-year-old was apparently held against his will before the group crossed state lines, authorities said.

Bond was set at $300,000 for George Shanks and $150,000 for Robert Shanks.

Olin has said it will permanently close the bunker to prevent entry.

According to the police report, a section of the fence was completely engulfed in flames when Knight arrived.

He tried to put out the blaze with the fire extinguisher from his squad car, but conditions made that effort largely ineffective, he said.

Firefighters arrived on the scene and extinguished the fire, which is believed to have been caused by fireworks, the police report states.

Assistant Police Chief Dave Ruebhausen praised Green's efforts.

"Citizen participation in this manner is the exception. Her actions were exemplary," he said.

New lawsuit filed against Germania

Lawyer John Dale Stobbs has filed a fifth version of a lawsuit seeking to recoup $10 million for Germania Bank capital note holders.

The lawsuit is one of two in U.S. District Court in East St. Louis to recover money lost by note holders when the thrift failed in 1990.

The Alton lawyer's class-action lawsuit was filed on behalf of the estate of the late Frank Moore of Alton and 800 other note holders.

"Our amended suit alleges that note buyers were told by Germania officials in 1987 that the bank was financially sound and making a profit," Stobbs said. "But actually Germania was operating at a loss."

The lawsuit alleges that Germania officials were involved in fraud in the sale of the notes.

Another lawsuit, filed by St. Louis attorney Frank Duda and Wood River lawyer Rod Pitts to collect money for note holders, is pending before U.S. District Judge William Beatty of Granite City.

Judge Beatty will probably consolidate the two lawsuits for trial," Stobbs said.

Germania sold $10 million in subordinated capital notes, called "schoonotes," in the fall of 1987 to quickly pump new money into the failing bank, Stobbs said.

"The sales campaign was carried out with white-hot intensity using paramilitary terms from the movie 'Top Gun,' according to the lawsuit filed by Stobbs."

Germania officials kept "flight logs" on sales people who sold the schoonotes, the lawsuit claims.

The targeted enemy was the bank's own trusting customers of many years," the suit alleges.

Stobbs has been fighting in court for three years to collect $50,000 that Moore invested in the uninsured notes.

He filed his first federal court lawsuit in 1990 alleging Germania officials schemed to defraud Moore in the sale of the notes.

Beatty dismissed earlier versions of the lawsuit and asked Stobbs to file amended complaints.

Moore lost his money when Germania went broke. The firm was seized in June 1990 by the federal Office of Thrift Supervision.

The 36-year-old Germania investor died in May without recovering his life savings.

Granite City

DUI arrest after crash

Phillip Lance Callis, 25, of the 3100 block of Harvard Place, was arrested at 2:06 a.m. June 10 for driving under the influence of alcohol, driving without liability insurance, failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident and failure to wear a seat belt.

An officer responding to an accident at Nameoki Road and Highway 203 reported finding a maroon Chrysler that had struck a fence.

Callis, the driver, told police he struck the fence in order to avoid another vehicle. Callis took three field sobriety tests, declined to take a breath analysis test and was charged. He was released after posting his driver's license and $107 as bail.

Drug warrant served

Rex J. White, 18, of the 2200 block of Edwards Street, was arrested at 9:15 a.m. June 11 on a Montgomery County warrant charging him with unlawful delivery of cannabis.

Bond on the warrant is $20,000.

Bill on guns in schools dies

SPRINGFIELD — Federal legislation to crack down on guns in schools is moving slowly in Congress while proposed state legislation has died.

The Gun-Free Schools Act introduced in March by U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield, has been assigned to a House subcommittee but no hearing has been set yet, Durbin spokeswoman Melissa Nairns said Thursday.

The legislation would require school districts to expel for 12 months any pupil who brings a gun to school or face the loss of federal money.

It would also create a $100 million grant program for schools to purchase metal detectors and provide training for security personnel. Meanwhile, legislation that passed the Illinois House earlier this spring has died in the Senate Rules Committee. The proposal would authorize principals to expel pupils for up to a year if they bring guns onto school property.

The measure was opposed by school boards, which currently have the final say in expulsion.

Domestic charge filed

Timothy E. Dugan, 34, of the 2200 block of Lincoln Avenue, was arrested at 1:19 a.m. June 11 for domestic battery.

Stanton allegedly punched his 24-year-old girlfriend in the face.

Motorist is arrested

Thomas K. Shepard, 41, of Chouteau Avenue in Mitchell, was arrested at 11:51 p.m. June 10 for driving under the influence of alcohol and improper lane usage.

An officer reported seeing a white 1985 Ford Ranger van cross the center yellow lines on Pontoon Road near Briarhaven.

Shepard, the driver, took two field sobriety tests and a breath analysis test and was charged. He was released after posting $107 cash and his driver's license as bail.

Woman kicked in face

William Charles Hayes, 36, of the 2900 block of Benton Street, was arrested at 9:44 p.m. June 10 for domestic battery.

Hayes allegedly kicked his wife in the face.

Wife, son allegedly hit

John P. Stanton, 56, of the 2300 block of Lincoln Avenue, was arrested at 6:03 p.m. June 10 and charged with two counts of domestic battery.

Stanton allegedly struck his wife in the head and neck with his fists and also struck his 13-year-old son in the face with his fist, according to a police report.

Stanton posted $214 cash as bail.

4 bad checks alleged

Jeffrey W. Reinke, also known as Jeffrey W. Carson, 18, of the 2200 block of Washington Avenue, was charged with four counts of deceptive practices in a warrant issued June 8.

He is alleged to have written four checks, totaling more than $2,100, to four different Granite City businesses between May 20-22 without sufficient funds in his checking account.

Bond was set at $20,000 per charge.

Child neglected charged

Wendy Bamford, 18, of the 2200 block of State Street, was charged with two counts of contributing to the neglect of a child, a special misdemeanor, in a warrant issued June 8.

Bamford allegedly left two small children — a two-year-old and a six-month-old — in the care of a girl under the age of 13 for an extended period of time, without proper food and clothing.

When Bamford left the children at about 2 p.m. June 7, she told the baby sitter she would be gone for about two hours, according to a police report.

When Bamford did not return, the sitter called police.

There was no food, nor were there any diapers in the house, the report states.

The children were taken to the Emergency Room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Local man's books not for the faint-hearted

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Steven Lloyd's first book only sold about 20 copies. But, since that represented the entire printing of Lloyd's self-published "Bedtime Stories," he was thrilled.

"A lot of people said they read it," Lloyd said. "Most of them said they liked at least part of it."

Lloyd has just released his second book, again self-published, "When Midnight Comes." Like the first, it is a collection of short stories that are pure horror.

It is available for $10 at the Village Book Store in Granite City.

As with his first book, "When Midnight Comes" is not for the faint-hearted.

"He sees not the face he had been kissing, but instead a face with two empty eye sockets. The yokes of the woman's eyes have melted away. Lenny leaps back away from her — this thing — and screams."

Her melting flesh runs down her see-through sweater and circles her feet in a pool. She is still reaching out to him, trying to get him to come closer to touch her melting flesh, now revealing an entirely different creature. The rotting stretch of meat takes the place of her sweet perfume.

"I had a friend read 'When Midnight Comes' before I printed it and he said it is 170 percent better than 'Bedtime Stories.' I hope he's right," Lloyd said.

"I think I've learned to keep up my characters better, use more description and put more feeling into the writing."

The first four chapters of Lloyd's new book were printed in a recent issue of Nocturnal Ecstasy magazine.

"It's a vampire magazine," Lloyd said. "I guess it's what's called an underground magazine. I didn't get paid for it, but I guess whether it printed is something."

Lloyd sent a copy of several chapters of "Bedtime Stories" and some other material to writer Robert McCannan — who along with Stephen King and Jack McLane is among Lloyd's stated influences — and McCannan wrote back a letter of encouragement.

"I don't think I've ever been so thrilled. His letter made me feel like a real writer," Lloyd said.

Coordinated Youth Services, Lloyd's alma mater after he was "kicked out" of Granite City High School, invited Lloyd to address some of the young people currently in its program.

"I was real nervous. I got scared talking to a group of people — and I really didn't want to do it. But Coordinated Youth turned me around when I needed it and I felt proud that they asked me," he said.

"I finally figured these were people who are just like I was and we could probably understand each other. As it turned out, I had a really good time and wondered why I was ever worried."

Lloyd is currently continuing his day job as a dishwasher at the Hen House restaurant and his next book, tentatively titled "Twisted Passages," is well on its way.

The cover of Lloyd's latest book.

"I'm really happy about all the people who've told me they like my writing, but even if nobody did I'd still write," he said.

"I guess it's in my nature. People tell me I'm getting better and I hope so."

And Lloyd said he keeps on learning new things.

"One thing I want to try in this next book is a real sex scene. I've never tried my hand at that and I think I'll give it a shot," he said.

Also, that kind of thing might interest Playboy and they pay real money for stories sometimes $1,000 or more — and that would be nice. Really nice."

Plan for higher court fees backed

Madison County officials are backing Sheriff Bob Churchich's plan to ask for higher court fees before hiring another deputy to patrol the courthouse.

Churchich said last week that the court security fund did not have enough money to hire a fourth deputy for the courthouse detail.

The fund has a surplus of $143,000, but Churchich said he was concerned revenues would not be enough to continue paying a fourth deputy in the future.

The court security fund, which comes from fees paid by people filing civil cases and individuals convicted of felonies and misdemeanors, needs a new influx of cash before the Sheriff's Department can afford another deputy in the courthouse, he said.

On Thursday, several influential Madison County officials supported Churchich's proposal and commended him for holding off on hiring another deputy. "This is a very responsible fiscal position to take," Auditor Fred Bauman told the County Board's Finance Committee.

In the last several months, the Finance Committee has been one of the sheriff's harshest critics, but committee members Thursday had nothing but kind words for Churchich.

"As far as I'm concerned, he deserves an 'atta boy' for this," committee member Alan Dunstan of Troy said.

Churchich was not at the meeting and could not be reached for comment. He has said he will ask the chief judge to raise court fees later this year. A new chief judge is expected to be elected July 1 to replace Chief Judge Paul Riley.

The court security fund is expected to boost another $85,000 in reserve by the end of this year. (See FELS, Page 14A)

Bank display opens at Historical Society

Madison County Historical Society, 715 N. Main St., Edwardsville, is inviting the public to visit the display of "TheBANK of Edwardsville — 125 Years Exhibit."

The display, which has been loaned to the museum by historian and former teacher Merrill Rosenthal of Wood River, consists of photographs and memorabilia which chronicle the history of TheBANK of Edwardsville.

Anyone having pictures of George W. Meyer, Edward H. Stole or W.L. Hadley is asked to contact Mr. Rosenthal via the museum.

The exhibit will continue through Sept. 30. "Wedding Finery Exhibit" is also on display at the museum, with ensembles for brides and grooms dating back to the early 1800s.

The Madison County Historical Museum, which is housed in the eight room federal-style mansion built by Dr. John H. Weir in 1835, features period furnished rooms, displays of Indian and pioneer artifacts and a history and genealogy research library and archives.

Groups can be accommodated by appointment, by calling 656-7562.

Farming, development interests clash

The following article was provided by Rosealynne Hart of Copley News Service.

A.D. "Red" Ruyle's farm has been in the family for more than 100 years, paid for, the family story goes, in gold pieces. It's land on which they hope to keep raising cattle and growing grain for some time to come.

So they weren't exactly thrilled when they saw aerial photos of the preliminary route for the new U.S. 67 corridor, a four-lane, divided expressway eventually connecting St. Louis and the Quad Cities.

"It runs through the middle of our best farmland — good, flat black dirt," says Geneva Ruyle. "If it was a pasture, we wouldn't mind so much."

The plans for the Alton-to-Jacksonville leg of the project are not final, says Kent Muskopf, program development engineer. "Without a doubt, that is one of the impacts that will be considered."

The tug-of-war between farming and development is an increasing familiar one. While the most rapid loss of farmland in Illinois has been in the counties around Chicago and St. Louis, there have been smaller tussles in virtually every part of the state.

Farmers between Peoria and Lincoln fought the widening of Illinois 121 in court for 10 years. In Cass County, where the state just purchased 4,500 acres of prime farmland for its 24-square mile Site M conservation area, farmers were vocal about their concern for how the land would be managed, and have lobbied for the land to be eventually sold to adjacent farmers.

Last year, when the state proposed buying 40,000 acres of farmland near Peotone for an airport, farmers were among the opponents of the plan.

"There are some farmers who are up in arms about it, and there's been talk of organizing," says Ruyle. "But what can you do? You can't win."

It's a rare farmer who doesn't recoil just a bit whenever some of the best farmland in the world is being paved over.

"We aren't making any more of it," says Jack Oakley, Sangamon County Farm Bureau manager.

Statewide, there were 28.5 million acres in 1987, the most recent figures available from the U.S. Census of Agriculture. That's a drop of 1.8 million acres since 1959 not including development within the last five years.

"We're losing 6,000 to 7,000 acres of farm ground a year to development in the county," says Max Schneidewind, Will County Farm Bureau manager. "You'll drive by something that was farm ground last summer and this year there are streets and homes all over the place."

There have been efforts to slow the conversion of farmland, including legislative passage of the Farmland Preservation Act.

"The intent of the act is for state agencies to take into consideration alternative impacts to agriculture," says Steve Chard, chief of the bureau of farmland protection in the state Department of Agriculture.

Every time a road or airport is built with state funds, the ag department finds out how farmland in the area will be affected, Chard says. Often they suggest land-saving modifications, such as reduced medians or incorporating an existing two-lane road into an expansion highway, as happened when U.S. 51 was upgraded to four lanes between Maroa and Bloomington.

They've also gone to bat to have utilities take special precautions when working in farmland removed from enterprise zones — areas that would otherwise have been targeted for economic development. However, the farmland bureau has only advisory, not enforcement authority over state projects and no official role at all vis-a-vis private development.

In Will County, Schneidewind says, farmers are negotiating with the county board and the Northwestern Illinois Planning Commission on an even more ambitious plan, which would essentially restrict urban sprawl to certain boundaries.

"It would require the city area be well developed before taking more farm land at will — a right most farm groups are adamant about."

"Owners should be able to sell their property to whoever might want it," Oakley said. "That's the premise in Farm Bureau thinking on this."

It is not an easy decision, says Schneidewind, who's watched many Will County farmers wrestle with the choice between a lucrative — one-time sale and what, sometimes, is the end of a way of life.

Sometimes even farmers who don't particularly want to sell just give up farming when their land is flooded repeatedly by runoff from nearby subdivisions.

"You can fight it for a while, but they usually end up selling," he says. "Recently farmland here has been going for development purposes for $14,000 to $18,000 an acre. When you look at the economic times, and having drought three of the last five years up here, it's hard to pass that up."

On the other extreme are those who wonder if farmland should be legally protected in the same way certain wildlife habitats and wetlands are.

Casino Queen takes it place

By Peggy O'Farrell
Staff writer

East St. Louis' hopes for economic development steamed into town as the Casino Queen took her place on the riverfront. The 450-foot riverboat docked Saturday afternoon, and casino owners hosted a welcome party Sunday.

Gambling cruises are slated to start June 23.

"This is a new day in the future of East St. Louis," Mayor Gordon Bush said. "Am I right? This is a new day for this great city."

City officials and casino owners anticipate the boat will bring $6 million in revenue annually to the city. In addition, funds have been promised to bolster the city's police and fire departments.

"We feel very welcome in East St. Louis," investor Patrick Kenney told wellwishers Sunday. Bush said he is "very excited" that his city is the new home for "the finest facility that any gaming enterprise has here in North America."

"We have made national history by bringing into fruition the largest riverboat casino in North America here in East St. Louis when they said it couldn't be done," Bush said. "But we did it. It's here."

Visitors were allowed to tour the plush four-story riverboat, which features some 550 slot machines, as well as gaming tables.

Six gaming cruises will be held daily, starting at 9 a.m. Cost ranges from $3 to $5, plus meals. Cruises will last about three hours, and the boat will travel from East St. Louis to near the Jefferson Barracks Bridge.

The boat was built at the Patti Shipyards in Pensacola, Fla., and is the biggest riverboat in North America. It arrived in East St. Louis after a 10-day cruise up the Mississippi.

"Doesn't this boat make the Admiral look like a canoe?" one proud employee remarked.

The boat has a capacity of 4,000, but cruises will be limited to 1,500 passengers during the first few months of operation.

The casino employs approximately 1,000 people. Visitors Sunday basked in the glow of chandeliers and the slot machines' flashing lights as they were treated to free food and drinks.

The first deck is entirely devoted to table games and slot machines. The second deck will house the dining facility and buffet, as well as a full-service

Foot Notes

by Dr. Armand A. Kachigian

JUST DON'T CALL THEM 'ARCH SUPPORTS'

What did old Aunt Millie do about her aching feet? She probably headed to the five-and-dime for some arch supports. Did they stop her feet from hurting? Probably not. In some ways, times haven't changed. The type of mass-produced products Aunt Millie used are still no substitute for prescription orthotics placed inside shoes to relieve foot problems. Much more than arch supports, these custom-made devices are designed to fit each individual's foot and unique condition. When misalignment of muscle and bone causes painful problems, orthotics can provide a constant, gentle redirection of the foot to its proper position, eliminating muscle strain, painful pressure points, and improper foot rotation.

P.S. Prescription orthotics are usually constructed of plastic or super-strong woven fibers from a plastic cast of the foot.

Faulty sewage systems near Maryville called health threat

The health of humans and animals in an unincorporated area near Maryville is at risk because malfunctioning sewage disposal systems are pumping raw sewage onto a wildlife conservation area.

State and county officials said private sewage filters from homes in the Blake Trails subdivision near Maryville have contaminated a stream running across a 13-acre tract inhabited by deer, coyotes and other animals.

Tom Keck, who owns the polluted tract, said he sued to home owners in Blake Trails four years ago when the problem first surfaced but that raw sewage is still pouring into the stream.

"It smells like you wouldn't believe, and the animals won't go near it," Keck said.

The sewage devices, known as aerobic aeration systems, are supposed to discharge clean water.

But an unknown number of the aerators are discharging untreated sewage, said county Building, Zoning and Environmental Administrator Joe Parente. The sewage runs directly from the subdivision to an open stream on Keck's land.

"Any time a test shows effluent discharge above ground, it's a threat. It's a health threat to anyone nearby," Parente said.

The aerators, which are used by home owners in rural areas outside conventional sewer lines, are regulated by the county and the state Department of Public Health.

It will probably be up to a judge to decide how to clean up the stream.

"It's out of our hands. There was a lawsuit about this, and, as I understand it, it has to go back to the judge if the neighbors don't comply," Parente said.

Four years ago, a judge ordered Keck's neighbors to repair their aerators.

The judge also ruled that if laboratory tests showed the aerators were malfunctioning again, Keck was to notify the home owners by mail and give them 30 days to fix the problem.

If the problem persisted, after that, the ruling gave Keck permission to take his neighbors back to court.

A state Public Health official said the sewage could carry diseases like typhoid, hepatitis and a host of gastrointestinal illnesses.

"The magnitude of the threat all depends on how widespread the leakage is and who is nearby," Department of Public Health spokeswoman, Dawn Edwards said.

Recent laboratory tests paid for by Keck showed the fecal coliform, or human waste, content in the stream water was 500 times more than what is considered safe by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

Tests by the Madison County Environmental Control Office showed similar results, Parente said. "It's bad. I can understand why Mr. Keck is so upset about this," he said.

Keck said he had notified the neighbors but had yet to see a difference in the pollution levels. He said he was preparing to take them back to court.

The property is part of the Illinois Acreage by Wildlife program sponsored by the Illinois Department of Conservation.

However, a Department of Conservation spokeswoman said the agency would not get involved unless there was a large kill of fish or wildlife.

The Illinois Environmental Agency has also declined to get involved because aerobic aerators are under the jurisdiction of the Public Health Department, an IEPA official said.

An aerobic aeration system is a buried, 8-by-5-foot tank designed to filter raw sewage before releasing clean water.

In the last 10 years, aerators have become a more popular form of private sewage treatment device than septic tanks and sand filters. Most aerators cost about $3,500 each.

"Basically, wherever you see residential growth in the county, you see these things going in. Anywhere within 200 feet of a sewer line is required to hook up to it, but outside that range they have these sorts of things," Parente said.

A county aerator permit costs $40, plus another $20 for lab tests six months after the unit is installed to make sure it is discharging clean water.

But problems are so common with the devices that Madison County has one full-time employee whose only job is to inspect aerators.

"We always have problems with these. It's not uncommon to have them fail," Parente said.

"It's so common, as a matter of fact, that it's enough to keep one guy pretty busy."

BOB D'AMICO, OF THE BEDDING EXPERTS, SPENDS THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS EACH MONTH ON YELLOW PAGES ADS. SAYS IT HELPS HIM REST EASIER.

Bob D'Amico, President & Owner of the Bedding Experts, Bensenville, IL

Life's been rather, well, cushy lately for Bob D'Amico.

Sure, there are the regular pressures of owning a chain of stores with annual sales in excess of $20 million. But one thing Bob loses no sleep over these days is having a steady stream of customers coming in. Thanks in large part, Bob says, to the ads he runs in the Ameritech PagesPlus® The Yellow Pages.

"I did a complete analysis of the effectiveness of my Yellow Pages program several years ago. The strength in the program I found then is just as evident today. You know, you might think spending $10 thousand a month on advertising would make a guy in business for himself toss and turn all night. Believe me, though, the Yellow Pages work. I sleep like a log."

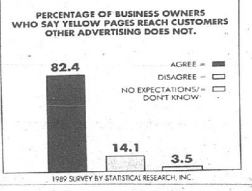

Bob's not alone in his faith in the Yellow Pages. Fact is, 82.4% of businesses surveyed say the Yellow Pages reach customers other forms of advertising do not.

If you'd like to increase your business like Bob, just call DonTech, publisher of the Ameritech PagesPlus®, at 1-800-252-8932.

A local area representative will gladly help you design your ad and plan your budget.

"It's a great business investment," says Bob. "It'll put your mind at ease. You'll sleep a lot easier."

After 37 years in education, BAC vocational center head retiring

Don Koleson taught teenagers vocational skills for real jobs in the real world. He demonstrated the technical know-how to students in occupational programs at Belleville Area College.

He also provided leadership for others as dean and coordinator of the Construction Management Training Program at BAC. Koleson also oversees the college's Industrial Training Center in Granite City.

Now, after 37 years in education, Don Koleson is retiring.

He began teaching shop to junior high students in 1956 after he received his bachelor's degree from Central Missouri State University.

During the summers, he often worked in outside construction. He also taught in the apprenticeship program for the iron workers beginning in 1964.

Koleson knew what it meant to have the skills to get the job done.

In 1974, he began a successful career at BAC. As the coordinator of the Construction Management Training Program, Koleson developed the welding program and was responsible for hiring the coordinator of the program. He also developed approximately 14 industrial and apprenticeship programs in cooperation with local industrial leaders.

The men and women in the programs received on-the-job training from mentors, practical experience, and classroom knowledge while employed," said Koleson. "They had the best of both worlds."

Koleson worked with outside building trades and developed associate degree programs that include construction, bricklayer, carpentry, cement mason, iron worker, painting and decorating, and sheetmetal. He also provided leadership in such programs as aviation maintenance technology, industrial electronics, pilot training, air-conditioning heating and refrigeration, drafting technology, industrial electronics, horticulture, welding and

Leftovers get good use through volunteer effort

Do you know what is in your refrigerator, right now? Probably at least one container with leftovers. You may have them planned for dinner tonight or lunch tomorrow, or you may have forgotten about them and just hope you find them again before you grow new life forms.

In the kitchen at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City, the leftovers are being put to good use, helping the less fortunate in the community. For the past year, SEMC has been participating in Operation Food Search, thanks to a suggestion from Ginny Lepping, vice president of Providence Occupational Health Services.

"I knew there was a need throughout our community and this was a way to use our extra resources in a positive way," Lepping said. "I spoke to Administration and got Frank McChinnis (SEMC senior vice president) involved in working with Operation Food Search." Operation Food Search was started in 1981 by a group of area business people. They have a network of more than 700 regular donors. These include hospitals and restaurants. Approximately 500 other merchants or organizations donate occasionally. The organization delivers to various agencies five days a week from its warehouse.

The agency also has representatives from individual agencies pick up perishable donations, directly from donors. The representatives are trained in food handling and sanitation free of charge. At SEMC, they come six days a week to pick up the food that is left over and cannot be re-used.

"If we can keep leftovers and re-use them, we do," said Nancy Seper, director of Food Services.

"For example, we keep vegetables to go into vegetable soup, but some things we either don't have enough to justify keeping it or re-using it too labor intensive. If there is any possibility the cooks usually figure it out."

But, state regulations, staffing and the quantities of food needed at the medical center leave some leftovers out in the cold, so to speak.

On a recent day, SEMC donated one pound of pasta and one pound of assorted bread products.

"There is not a lot we can do with one pound of leftover pasta," Seper said. "The bread was probably leftover toast. We do make bread pudding, when it is on the menu."

The Operation Food Search representative provides her own containers when she picks up the food.

"The Operation Food Search people are appreciative of anything we can give them," Seper said. "It gives all of us a good feeling to know it is going for a good cause. They have a refrigeration unit to keep cold foods cold. They are well-trained and know how to handle food. That has really made the program work."

In the past, SEMC has not donated leftovers because of liability problems.

"When someone leaves the building with food, we have no control over how they handle it," Seper said. "We were afraid if someone were to get food poisoning, we would be responsible, even though we did not mishandle the food."

However, Operation Food Search provides the medical center with a release form to sign. In addition, Illinois recently passed a Good Samaritan Act, releasing organizations from responsibility if a donation was made in good faith.

"I am glad we are helping the community this way," Seper said. "Some overproduction is unavoidable. We may have a census of 200 in the morning, but it may be down to 180 by dinner. We can't predict it, but this way we know the food will go to good use."

SIUE board OKs agreement with Edwardsville on land

The Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees has agreed to grant a utility easement to Edwardsville for installation of sanitary sewer service to the Olympic Festival facility on the Edwardsville campus.

The board also consented to the city's request to annex land in the Olympic Festival facility area and along the university's western property boundary.

Meeting recently in Springfield, the SIUE Board approved annexation of approximately 35 acres in the southwestern portion of the campus and a 300-foot wide strip along the western boundary of SIUE from the southernmost area of the campus north to Poag Road. With the Board's consent in May, 1990, the city previously had annexed the strip of land along the southernmost part of the campus west to Bluff Road.

The board had approved in December, a ground lease with the city to permit construction of the Olympic Festival stadium in the area where the university's soccer and track field facilities are located. It was indicated at that time that a utility easement for the sewer line and related annexation by the city were parts of the proposal for development of the Festival facility.

The easement provides the city a permanent 25-foot-wide utility access from the university's western boundary to the Festival facility. During construction of the sewer line, the city also will be provided a temporary construction easement along the permanent easement.

The stadium is being built for the 1994 Olympic Festival, scheduled July 1-10 at various sites in the St. Louis region. No university funds are committed to the construction of the stadium or the utility services.

SIUE official gets national college registrar post

Eugene Magac, university director of schools and college relations at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, has been appointed chairperson of the American Association of College Registrars and Admissions Officers' national committee on transfer and articulation. The appointment was made at the Association's recent conference in Orlando, Fla.

The 12-member committee, which geographically represents educational institutions from around the country, will address current issues and problems in the transfer and articulation process facing high schools, both public and private, community colleges, four-year colleges, and universities across the nation. The association has more than 8,500 members.

How to Win the Battle Against Lawn Pests

From the Experts at

FRANK'S NURSERY & CRAFTS

Where Beautiful Things Begin

Wherever there's a beautiful carpet of green lawn, there are plenty of critters ready and waiting to unleash their destructive forces. The gardeners who have tolled long and hard to create the masterpiece is not about to sit back and let all that work go for naught. When the pests arrive, it means war!

Some insects are so small, you'd never even know they were there. Others are very annoying to us, but leave lawns alone. Then we come to the lawn's enemy, Sod webworms, chinch bugs and grubs, for example, can make easy work of your gorgeous lawn and destroy it in no time at all.

Let's take a look at some of the most common invaders. Some of these may sound quite menacing, but the folks at Ortho have the weapons to deal with 'em. And there's a whole arsenal at Frank's.

Armyworms and cutworms: The symptoms are round, bare areas in your lawn. If there are large numbers of these pests, the grass can be eaten right down to the soil level. Control: Liquid Sevin, Sevin 5 Dust, Sevin Garden Dust, Dursban.

Billbugs: Small and distinct circular patterns that turn yellow or brown are the symptoms. Grass stems lift out easily. Control: Dursban, Lawn and Garden Insect Control.

Grubs: Brown, irregular patches in the lawn in late spring or early fall are their signs. The patches can be removed easily. Control: First remove the thatch that is protecting the grubs, then use Diazinon or Diazinon Plus.

Moles: When you notice raised ridges in the lawn, it's a safe bet there are moles down there. Moles don't really mean any harm, but since they break off the grass roots with their tunneling, damage results. Control: The best way to bid them adieu? Don't show any hospitality. Eliminate their favorite food. They feed on grubs, earthworms and several other insects, and their favorite is grubs. Get rid of the grubs and the moles won't hang around.

Slugs and Snails: Symptoms of these are silvery trails in the morning. If you have ivy or dense ground cover, you should keep an eye out for the pests. Control: Bug-Geta.

Sod Webworms: Dead patches 1 to 2 inches in diameter are a pretty good indication these pests have made their home in your lawn. You can break apart the damaged areas to check for signs such as greenish-tan excrement. Control: Diazinon, Diazinon Soil & Turf Insect Control, Dursban Lawn Insect Spray.

Earthworms: Symptoms are small mounds or clumps of soil that is scattered about. You may see the worms after a heavy rain. Control: None! Earthworms are good for your soil, helping to aerate it and reduce the buildup of thatch. You may want to break up the soil mounds if you don't like the looks of them, but that's about it. Earthworms are on our side!

Report says attorney general failed to monitor accounts

The Illinois Attorney General's Office has failed to monitor $4.2 million in accounts and has not successfully pursued collection of unpaid estate taxes, according to a state audit.

The audit, released Tuesday, by the Illinois Auditor General's Office also charged that the office of Attorney General Roland Burris exceeded its budget in fiscal years 1991 and 1992 and failed to keep adequate track of property in its Chicago office.

The $4.2 million in questioned accounts includes $2.7 million due to consumers and $1.2 million due to the state from lawsuits.

The questioned estate tax collections stem from federal estate tax returns that claim to have paid Illinois estate taxes but did not offer proof.

According to the report, the attorney general is pursuing current estate tax collections but hasn't gone after unpaid taxes from when the tax was implemented in 1983.

Since 1983 the estates of all deceased Illinois residents have been taxed. The attorney general is charged with supervising collection of the tax.

In its response, the Attorney General's Office said it is implementing accounting procedures to keep track of the questioned funds.

The office also said that it is pursuing information on estate taxes due from previous years under an agreement with the Internal Revenue Service, but that neither agency has discovered large amounts of unpaid taxes.

The office acknowledged that its budget was exceeded by $100,000 in telephone charges in 1991 and $36,000 in 1992.

Burris aides blamed former Attorney General Neil Hartigan for the budget problems, stating that Burris took control of the department halfway through the 1991 fiscal year and faced a $1.2 million budget shortfall.

The Attorney General's Office also said it has adopted policies and procedures to keep accurate track of all furniture.

Expanded emissions tests delayed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency is postponing, but not abandoning, efforts to pass legislation expanding vehicle emissions pollution testing to other Madison County communities.

Legislation adding Collinsville, Edwardsville, Glen Carbon and Troy to the mandatory tailpipe-testing program now in other parts of the county was never called for a vote in the Senate this spring after it cleared committee.

Tom Wallin of the IEPA's vehicle inspection and maintenance program said agency officials believe the bill is "unlikely to pass this session" but will bring the measure back in October's fall session.

The expansion of the program is a part of the state's strategy to reduce ozone pollution under requirements of the federal Clean Air Act, Wallin said.

A state plan that must include expanded testing is due to the U.S. EPA by Nov. 15, he said.

Other communities in Madison and St. Clair counties that have been exempt from testing would be added, approximately doubling the number of vehicles covered in the two counties.

Because several thousand more vehicles would be tested, the IEPA would add two or three testing stations in the two counties. Stations are now in Wood River, Mitchell and East St. Louis.

The pending legislation would also require cars to be tested every two years. The current testing schedule requires cars to be tested at age 3, 5 and 7 years and then annually.

Testing procedures would also be expanded under the bill.

BAC union negotiations get under way

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

The negotiation season is approaching Belleville Area College as administrators begin talks with one of its three unions.

The college is negotiating with a new bargaining group — a union that represents the full- and part-time public safety personnel at the Granite City and Red Bud campuses.

This is the first time the college will have a contract with that group which recently created the new bargaining unit and held elections this spring, said Larry Friedrich, BAC vice president.

Fifteen to 20 security guards will be covered by the agreement, but he said their base salaries differ by the amount of experience and education they have.

The contracts for two other groups—faculty and support services staff—will expire Aug. 16 and June 30 respectively, Friedrich said. No negotiations have begun on either.

The 126 full-time faculty members at Belleville, Granite City and Red Bud are covered by the American Association of University Professors and the Illinois Federation of Teachers.

The groups received an average 3.1 percent raise in their one-year contract last year.

Clerical workers, secretaries and technical staff people, including those who work at the Programs and Services for Older Persons, got a four-percent raise last year. Their one-year contract covers 95 positions.

Conference targets business owners, managers

A conference for owners and managers of existing and potential businesses, members of the professional community and providers of services will be held at the Gateway Convention Center in Collinsville on June 23.

The Convention Center is at the intersection of Interstate 55 and Illinois Route 157.

The meeting is sponsored by the Small Business Development Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, American Success Telemarketing and Research of Edwardsville, Lewis and Clark Community College, the St. Clair County Intergovernmental Grants Department, and the Madison County Community Development Office.

The meeting, which will have special activities targeted for veterans, minorities, women and disabled workers, is scheduled from noon until 8 p.m. Registration is $5.

The keynote address, to be delivered by Tony McMahon, deputy district director for the Illinois Small Business Association, will begin at 12:30 p.m.

Breakout sessions on special issues related to establishing a new business or operating an existing business more effectively will begin at 1 p.m.

The schedule of sessions includes:

- Patents, Trademarks, Copyrights; Legal Forms of Organization; How to Start A Business; Small Business Financial Programs; Trouble Signs of a Business; Sales Taxes Explained; How to Talk to Your Banker; Growing with Exports; Taxes, Records and Bookkeeping; Sales Techniques; Conflict Resolution; How to Refinance; Buying and Selling a Business; Marketing Issues and Decisions; Selling to the Government; Production Planning and Scheduling Standards; Veterans' Programs; Balancing Personnel and Professional Lives; Minority Business Opportunities; Reading People Between the Lines; and Advertising and Promoting a Business.

Additional information concerning the business fair may be obtained by contacting Chuck Behn at the SIU Small Business Development Center at 692-2929.

Thompson's portrait installed

Former Gov. James R. Thompson took his place in state history May 28 alongside 36 other Illinois governors with the installation of his official portrait in the state Capitol's Hall of Governors.

In a ceremony hosted by Secretary of State George H. Ryan, the state's longest-serving governor joined Ryan and Gov. Jim Edgar in unveiling a likeness of Thompson standing before a portrait of Abraham Lincoln.

"This portrait will take its place in the Capitol as a remembrance of 14 years of unparalleled public service," said Ryan, who served as Thompson's lieutenant governor during the last eight years of his tenure.

"I think it's entirely appropriate that a man who focused a spotlight on our state's historical sites is now and rightfully so a part of that history."

The oil-on-canvas painting was commissioned last year after the General Assembly authorized an appropriation of $15,000 for Thompson's official portrait.

Thompson, 57, had final approval of both the artist, William T. Chambers of Arlington Heights, and the pose.

Edgar pushing tough casino job rules

Measure was prompted by Granite City native's job switch

Gaming Board members and employees would be banned from casino industry jobs for three years after they leave their posts under legislation pushed by Gov. Jim Edgar. The governor's proposal was primarily prompted by a recent newspaper story about former Gaming Board member Robert Gibson. He took a job with a company partly owned by the largest shareholder in the company that owns the Alton Belle Casino, Edgar spokesman Mike Lawrence said. Gibson has an executive position with a consulting firm that is partly owned by William Cellini, the Springfield millionaire businessman and Republican power who is the largest shareholder in Argosy Gaming Co., owner of the Alton Belle. Gibson, a Granite City native, is the former president of the Illinois State AFL-CIO, and now lives in Chicago. Edgar's bill, which was described in a news release as intended to "lock the revolving door" for Gaming Board members and employees, would bar them from certain activities within three years from leaving their positions.

State Treasurer Patrick Quinn had earlier proposed similar restrictions as part of a larger riverboat gambling "ethics package." That passed the Democratic-controlled House in a watered-down version but was killed in the Senate Rules Committee by the Republican majority in that chamber. Although Quinn aides muttered that Edgar was stealing and neutering the treasurer's proposal, Lawrence contended it went further because it also applied to employment by other companies in which riverboat gambling licensees had a principal interest. However, the governor's plan, expected to be adopted as an amendment to a pending Senate bill today, would only directly bar employment of Gaming Board members or staffers with the casino firms themselves. The measure would let the Gaming Board decide whether a conflict was involved for work with another company in which a licensee was a principal owner. The legislation would also bar former Gaming Board members or staff from making an appearance or representing someone with or seeking a license before the Gaming

Board. It would require Gaming Board approval within the three-year period for the ex-employee to accept a job with a law firm that represents anyone with an interest before the board. Violations of the law could subject the board members or employees to a fine of up to $10,000 while a license holder who hired someone contrary to the law could potentially lose a license. "The regulation of riverboat gaming in this state is a sensitive matter worthy of special attention," Edgar said, and claimed his proposal would "be one of the toughest laws in the nation in preventing gambling regulators from going through the revolving door to jobs that raise questions about their integrity and the integrity of riverboat regulation." Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, contended Edgar's proposal was filled with loopholes, however, and said, "It's just trying to save face by saying you're doing something about ethics."

Belle's parking lot to grow

Owners of the Alton Belle Casino and the city have cut a deal for 180 more parking spots on the riverfront. Argosy Gaming Co., which owns the casino, will pay $250,000 for the design and construction of an extension of the Riverfront Park parking lot. Argosy will dedicate the parking lot to the city when the project is completed, hopefully in time for the Fireworks on the Mississippi celebration, Belle purchasing agent Rick Watts said. "We don't have an absolute deadline, but with good weather we hope to get it done by the Fourth of July so we can use it for the fireworks," he said. Construction was to begin almost immediately if the city secured a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to allow construction of a temporary roadway on nearby Corps property, Mayor Bob Towse said. "It will be a very beautiful parking lot and a fine addition to downtown," he said. "Anyone can park there when it's completed. It's public parking." The parking lot extension is part of the Marina/Riverfront District Master Plan. In the future, the lot may be used for parking near the proposed transient marina. The parking lot will be lighted and have curbing. Argosy officials plan to landscape the area. No additional entrances will be built. Sheppard Morgan & Schwaab Inc. was hired for the engineering work. Argosy officials said they need the additional parking to accommodate the large number of gamblers boarding the Alton Belle Casino II, which debuted Memorial Day weekend, and the new Alton Landing, which opened last June 6.

The thrill of the grill

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

No matter how you spell it, barbecue — and its aliases, barbecue, bar-b-q and BBQ — is as important as paper plates, flies and potato salad when it comes to summer meals.

The St. Louis area is no slouch when it comes to using the grill for delicious meals. The Louis Maul Co., makers of barbecue sauce, surveyed local cooks in May and found that eight out of 10 area households barbecue outdoors during the warm weather. Of those who barbecue, more than 40 percent do so at least once a week.

Almost all of them use barbecue sauce on occasion, while 40 percent use it about once a week. Of course, the weekend — and Father's Day is no exception — is the primary time to stoke the coals. There are diehards, 4.7 percent, who say they barbecue every day. Besides barbecue sauce, favorite seasonings include everything from beer to brown sugar, pickle juice to molasses, applesauce to 7-Up.

Grilling must be in the genes of Americans.

Henry Ford invented charcoal as a means of using scraps from a mill in the hardwood forest of northern Michigan that made wooden parts for Model T's. He had his friend, Thomas Edison, design the first plant that produced charcoal.

Maul's survey found local grillers put pork steaks at the top of their favorite meat list (39 percent), with ribs and chicken also high on the list (about 22 percent each). Also called butt steaks, pork steaks are a universal cut from the shoulder end of the loin. Robin Klein, dietitian at the National Pork Producers Council, says they can be found nationwide, but the St. Louis area has a corner on the market.

Matt Bradley, of Hermann, enjoys grilling as much as tasting his favorite grilled foods at the 11th annual Original Riverfront Barbecue Open, a benefit for the National Kidney Foundation of Eastern Missouri and Metro East Inc., May 22 at Laclede's Landing.

I don't know why they are so popular in St. Louis, but they really are," she says.

St. Louisans cook a variety of other food on the grill, too. In addition to following national trends by grilling less meat and more vegetables, they include whole turkeys, alligator, turtle, quiche, rattlesnake and raccoon in their repertoire.

Stories from barbecuers rival the tales of fishermen. They have looked up to find the local pit bull eye-to-eye over an expensive steak. They have lost dinner to a pesky squirrel. There is nothing like a little nap to panic the grill overseer.

There's also an adrenaline charge when food from the barbecue somehow manages to hit the ground.

In the Maul's survey, four out of 10 said they wash it off and put it back on the fire, another 6 percent just look over their shoulder to see if anyone is looking — and pop it back on the grill. Fido has a lot at stake in this situation because 23.3 percent said they pass that piece of meat along to the family dog.

Fire up the charcoal

There are two major parts in the grilling production — the food and the fire. Accessories to the process set the stage.

- Keep the cooking area, hands, utensils, containers, cutting board and fresh serving plate clean. Orchestrate with a pair of tongs or spatula with long handles to turn meat. Keep a squirt bottle handy for flame flare-ups.

- Start by banking charcoal briquettes into a pyramid shape. Use fire starters designed for the grill. Never gasoline or other volatile fluids. It takes 25 to 30 minutes for the lit charcoal to achieve a glowing stage for food to cook correctly — with heat rather than flame. The briquettes have a light coating of gray ash at this stage.

- Discard any unused marinade.

- Briquettes are the same as charcoal. Americans bought 789,677 tons of charcoal — a combination of coal, sawdust, wood chips and sand — last year.
- Direct heat grilling quickly cooks food — like hamburger, steak, kabobs and chops — quickly, directly over glowing charcoal. Indirect heat is like cooking in an oven. It works well with roasts, ribs and thick chops. Coals are banked on the sides of the grill and food is positioned in the center over a drip pan to collect juices.
- Adding wood chips to a fire adds the flavor of that particular wood. Soak dry chips in water about 30 minutes before adding to a fire.
- Cooking food over an open flame is as old as fire itself. Covered cooking is far more recent. It controls heat to cook food more thoroughly.

Strike up the grill

A well-orchestrated meal follows from a plan that becomes routine the more it is practiced.

- Use well-trimmed meat to avoid flare-ups and flames directly touching the food.

- Use tongs to turn foods so flavorful juices do not evaporate. Because barbecue sauce has sugar in it, it should be added during the last 15 to 30 minutes of grilling to avoid burning.

- Marinating food 15 minutes to 2 hours flavors food. To tenderize less tender cuts of meat, refrigerate in ¼ to ½ cup acidic marinade for each 1 to 2 pounds meat for six hours or as long as overnight. Marinating meat longer than 24 hours makes it mushy.

- The heat of the grill can be judged by how many seconds the palm of the hand can be held about 4 inches above coals before it must be pulled away. Hot, two seconds; medium-hot, three; medium, four; and low, five.

- A greased hinged basket is best for grilling seafood fillets. It can be turned to ensure doneness without losing its tender contents.

- If a grill has no cover, loosely tent a large sheet of heavy-duty aluminum foil, tightening at the edges of the grill.

- Even though they have the least amount of meat per bone, spareribs have many devoted fans. Allow one pound per hungry diner for them and back ribs. Country-style ribs have more meat; about one-half pound makes a serving. Many people cook ribs first by boiling them before grilling, but they also can be cooked slowly over indirect heat 1½ to 2 hours, with occasional turning.

- Grilled vegetables gain a lightly smoked flavor. Just cut and lightly brush them with vegetable or olive oil.

- Cut squash, small eggplant and bell pepper in half lengthwise. Slice onions ½-inch thick. Turn them occasionally. Cooking takes somewhere between 10 and 20 minutes.

- To cook corn in its husk, first remove its silks. Fold back the husks and tie together at the end. Soak in cold water 1 to 2 hours, then grill, turning frequently, 20 to 30 minutes.

- When grilling low-fat food, like seafood or chicken breast, lightly spray the grill to keep it from sticking. The food also can be dipped in salad dressing, plain yogurt or a marinade before grilling.

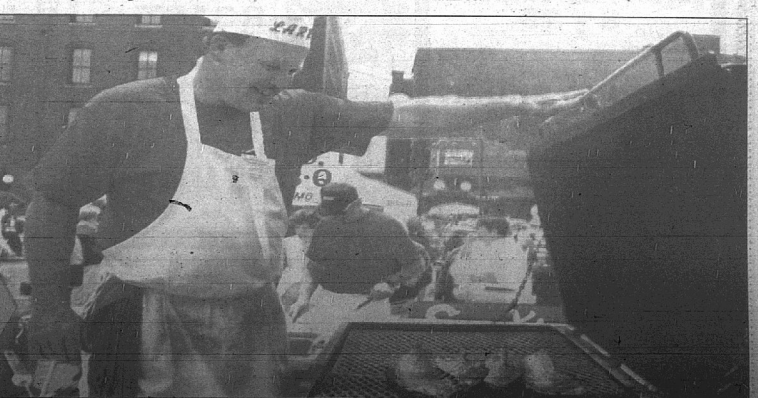

- Don't settle for a single summer barbecue flavor. Cooking outdoors over an open fire is a round-the-world delight. Seasonings can be as bright and tangy as the Caribbean, savory as the Mediterranean or red-white-and-blue as a steamboat ride down the Mississippi.

- Italian bruschetta, usually toasted, is a treat from the grill. Mix together ½ cup olive oil, 2 tablespoons chopped fresh or 2 teaspoons dried leaf basil and 2 cloves garlic, crushed, in small bowl. Cut 1 loaf French bread lengthwise in half. Brush with oil mixture. Grill over medium coals 6 minutes, turning once, until golden brown. Slice ½-inch thick.

- Steaming ensures doneness, but does not necessarily allow the smoky flavor to come through. Food is steamed when it is cooked in aluminum foil on a grill or when meat is left to simmer in a pan of barbecue sauce over low coals.

- A little imagination can spark a new symphony of flavors on the grill. ## Quick-rub back ribs

- 4 lb. pork back ribs
- 2 tbsp. salt
- 2 tbsp. sugar
- 2 tbsp. cumin
- 2 tsp. black pepper
- 2 tsp. chili powder
- ¼ cup paprika

Mix together salt, sugar, cumin, pepper, chili powder and paprika. Rub over all surfaces of ribs. Cook over indirect heat with banked medium-hot fire, in covered grill 1½ to 2 hours, turning occasionally, until very tender.

Makes 4 servings.

St. Louis barbecue shrimp

- 2 cups reduced-calorie barbecue sauce
- Salt and pepper
- Pepper sauce, if desired
- ¼ cup oil
- 1 tsp. leaf thyme
- 2 lb. medium shrimp, uncooked, shelled, deined

Skewers (if wooden, soak in water 30 minutes)

Mix sauce, pinch salt and pepper, dash pepper sauce, thyme and oil in bowl until well-blended. Add shrimp, turning to coat with marinade. Refrigerate, covered, at least 4 hours.

Remove shrimp from marinade and place on skewers. Cook on greased grill 6 inches above low glowing coals, basting frequently and turning once, about 4 minutes per side until shrimp turn pink.

Jalapeno-glazed turkey thighs

- 2 lb. bone-in turkey thighs
- ¼ cup jalapeno jelly
- 2 tsp. margarine
- 1 tsp. lime juice

In 2-quart microwave-safe oblong dish, arrange turkey with meaty portions to outside. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on high power 10 minutes, turning over halfway through cooking. In small bowl or cup, warm jelly and margarine until melted. Stir in lime juice.

Grill thighs, brushing with jelly mixture, about 10 minutes until done. Cut turkey from bones. Serve with remaining warm jelly mixture.

Makes 4 servings.

Sweet-n-smoky barbecue brisket

- 4 lb. beef brisket
- 1 lb. salt and pepper
- 3 cups sweet-n-smoky barbecue sauce, divided

Salt and pepper meat. Pour 2 cups sauce over meat in large casserole pan. Refrigerate overnight. Cook, covered, in 250° oven or over low heat on covered grill about 4 hours; slice meat thinly. Return slices to pan and add 1 cup sauce. Bake, uncovered, at 300° or on grill 30 minutes until heated through.

Makes 8 servings.

Broiled sausage with pineapple

- 1 jar (10 oz.) beer-flavored barbecue sauce
- 1 lb. smoked sausage
- 1 cup canned pineapple chunks, drained
- 4 skewers, if desired (if wooden, soak in water 30 minutes)

Cut sausage in half crosswise or place cubes on skewer, alternating with pineapple. Grill, basting with sauce, until browned. Turn and continue to brown. Apply heavy coat of sauce and grill briefly when heated through.

Makes 4 servings.

Honey-garlic grilled chops

- 4 boneless pork chops, about 1 inch thick
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup honey
- 2 tbsp. soy sauce
- 1 tbsp. dry sherry
- 2 cloves garlic, minced

Combine lemon juice, honey, soy sauce, dry sherry and garlic. Pour over chops in heavy plastic bag or covered dish. Close tightly. Refrigerate 4 to 24 hours.

Grill chops over drip pan in center of banked medium-hot coals 12 to 15 minutes, turning once and basting occasionally with reserved marinade.

Makes 4 servings.

Note: Chops with marinade can be sealed in bag and frozen up to 2 months. Thaw in refrigerator a day before grilling.

Orange country-style ribs

- 2 lb. country-style pork ribs, cut in 1 rib portions
- 1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
- ½ cup packed brown sugar
- ½ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 2 tbsp. red wine vinegar
- 1 tsp. prepared mustard
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ tsp. pepper

Combine tomato paste, brown sugar, juice concentrate, vinegar, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Mix well.

Place large piece of foil or pan under rack and over coals to catch drippings. Place ribs on grill about 6 inches above slow coals. Cook, covered, about 30 minutes. Turn. Cook, covered, 20 minutes longer. Brush ribs with sauce. Cook, covered, 25 to 35 minutes more until done, turning and brushing frequently with sauce.

Makes 4 servings.

Go ahead: Make Dad's day and please his sweet tooth

Another tie? One more pair of socks? How about that old last resort, handkerchiefs? The annual Father's Day dilemma has dawned.

Here is one solution to make Dad's day: A scrumptious dessert fits him to a "T." For waist-conscious dads, a delicious treat that is easy on fat and calories is even better. These recipes start with either sugar-free gelatin or sugar-free instant pudding and pie filling. They are all simply made and some are prepared in individual servings, so automatic portion-control is easy.

These Dad-pleasers deliver great taste, yet all are lean on fat and have 120 calories or less per serving.

If lemon flavor is one of Dad's flavor priorities, surprise him with refreshing Sparkling Lemon Ice. Serve in a fancy glass, then garnish this delicious frosty treat with summer-fresh raspberries and mint leaves. He probably won't guess it has only 8 calories and absolutely zero fat — unless somebody tells him.

With sugar-free instant pudding, luscious chocolate dessert will not pull Dad away from his good intentions. For dads who fancy the sophisticated flavor combination of chocolate and coffee but shy away because they think it is too rich, Cappuccino Dessert has a rich, satisfying mocha-spice flavor. At an amazing 90 calories, this low-fat treat satisfies his sweet tooth.

Cherries Jubilee is another rich-tasting winning bet. Easy to make and fun to eat, it is a colorful and festive parfait.

Sparkling lemon ice

- 1 pkg. (4 servings) sugar-free lemon gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup cold lemon-lime seltzer
- 2 tsp. fresh lemon juice

- softened
- 3 tbsp. orange juice
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 cup chopped dried apricots
- Toasted pound cake or nut bread

Cappuccino dessert
2 cups skim milk
1 tsp. decaffeinated instant coffee granules
1 pkg. (4 servings) chocolate sugar-free instant pudding mix
1 1/2 cups frozen reduced-fat whipped topping, thawed
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. vanilla
Pour milk and instant coffee

Mix gouda and cream cheese, orange juice and sugar until fluffy. Stir in apricots. Chill. Spread cheese mixture on cake or bread. Makes 1 1/2 cups spread.

into large bowl. Add pudding mix. Beat with wire whisk 1 to 2 minutes until well blended. Pour into 6 individual dessert dishes. Refrigerate.

Just before serving, mix whipped topping and cinnamon. Spread over pudding. Garnish with cinnamon sticks, if desired.

Makes 6 servings; 90 calories, 4 g protein, 14 g carbohydrate, 3 g fat, no cholesterol and 260 mg sodium each. Diabetic exchanges: 1/2 (two percent) milk, 1/2 starch.

Cherries jubilee
1 1/2 cups cold (2 percent) milk
1/2 tsp. almond extract, if desired
1 pkg. (4 servings) vanilla sugar-free instant pudding mix
1 cup frozen reduced-fat whipped topping, thawed
2 tsp. toasted sliced almonds
1 can (20 oz.) reduced-calorie cherry pie filling
Pour milk and 1/2 teaspoon extract into large bowl. Add pudding mix. Beat with wire whisk 1 to 2 minutes until well blended.

Gently stir in whipped topping and 1 tablespoon almonds. Mix pie filling with remaining 1/2 teaspoon extract.

Alternately spoon pudding mixture and cherries into parfait glasses. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Garnish with remaining almonds.

Makes 6 servings; 120 calories, 2 g protein, 22 g carbohydrate, 3 g fat, 5 mg cholesterol and 200 mg sodium each. Diabetic exchanges: 1 1/2 fruit and 1/2 fat.

FOOD

Convenience leads to bigger deli stock

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

The deli — the department of the supermarket showing the most growth — should continue to grow and grow, according to the International Dairy-Bakery Association's annual Seminar and Expo held last week in St. Louis.

Hassle-free, low-cost, fresh and healthy lunches are among the reasons for the deli's popularity. Brown-bagging never has been so tasty or easy. With today's time demands, the lunch routine flows into meals the rest of the day.

Breads and bakery products continue to show ever-widening diversity. Dinosaur cookies may come and go, but low-salt Italian pretzels, focaccia bread shells and biscotti could be as common as French bread and birthday cakes in the next few years.

Leonard Petrofsky of Petrofsky's Enterprises, St. Louis, sees no end to the appeal of bagels. His company introduced two new flavors — pizza and jalapeno — which he said are gaining quick popularity in the Southwest. Petrofsky's offers 14 different bagel flavors.

"It used to be you ate bagels with the lox and salmon spreads,"

Now you make sandwiches out of them," he said.

Sian Fitzgerald of International Baking Co. said scones are slow to sell, but once they are introduced they hold their market.

Ellen Gellert of Long Island Cheese and Specialties said consumers can look for more cheeses packaged in small sizes.

"People might like a special cheese for a party but not want to deal with the leftovers all the days afterward, so they go for something that will be used up at one time," she said.

Imported cheeses held a large part of the show. Names like paneer, podlaski and akawi may not be traditionally American, but they may become as familiar as havarti and brie have become in recent years.

The Roquefort Association sponsored an education campaign with three St. Louis restaurants and the Cheese Place to educate consumers about the cheese, which looks like blue cheese but is unique as a product of sheep's milk made only in Roquefort, France.

A common thread through the cheeses is not always blue, but it is ready-to-serve and creamy. Mascarpone, a cream cheese which was being offered for sampling by the Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board, and Agria, a less-sour sour cream from Mexico's Cacique Inc., both showed variations on a favorite theme.

Raskas Foods Inc., St. Louis, emphasized the interest in cheeses with less fat, with its fat-free cream cheese.

Other products down the road include three-layer products about to be marketed — one in Southwestern and the other in Italian flavors with a pesto and cream cheese layer in each.

Goat's milk cheese is becoming more common, according to several marketers, with sources increasing in the U.S. It is receiving attention as a product that can appeal to older consumers who can tolerate it better than cow's milk. It also is being made into more familiar flavors, such as cheddar.

Jake Baker said Wilson's Continental Deli sales reflect the interest in "down-home" cooking.

"I read that and then I look at our sales and find our Virginia hams are receiving high sales, which follows," he said.

Salads continue to be high-interest items, too. Steve LaScola said Sandridge Gourmet Salads recently introduced an entirely new line of Italian-based salads, called Dall' Cuore ("From the Heart"), with 16 based on oil and vinegar and only one creamy with mayonnaise. Beans, pasta and vegetables are prominent ingredients in the salads.

"They are not necessarily lighter in calories than mayonnaise-type salads, but they have a cool, refreshing, crispy taste that people like today," he said.

Putting together the ethnic, fresh, long-lasting attributes that are favored, JSL Foods is marketing fresh stir-fried noodles seasoned with or without vegetables that only need heating. They can be held in a refrigerator two months because they have been pasteurized.

Legion aids Special Olympics

The 22nd District of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary assisted Area 12 Special Olympics with food distribution on April 30 and May 1.

On April 30, 21 members plus five from the Telephone Pioneers group met at the VFW in Collinsville to assemble lunch bags for the participants and volunteers for the games held the next day. The group prepared 3,000 lunch bags in three hours.

On May 1, Area 12 Special Olympics was held at the Highland High School athletic fields. Two food tents were manned from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Homemade cookies and fruit drinks were served throughout the morning and early afternoon. During the lunch time, this group distributed boxes to each participating group with lunch bags and hamburgers in them.

Assisting both days were Diana Pointon, 22nd District, of Belleville; from Belleville Unit and Post 58, James Muir, Paul Schlichter and Nick Pointon; from Edwardsville Unit 199, Dorothy Sooy; from Highland Unit 439, Georgia Pollard; O'Fallon Unit and Post, Rose Schwarz and Bernard Schwarz; and Venice-Madison Unit 307, Dorothy Hinson, Melba Duncan, Pauline Messinger and Marge Nona.

Assisting on April 30 were: Collinsville Unit 365, Mary Lamoreaux, Mary Rinck, and Sons of Legion member Scott Cranmer; Edwardsville Unit 199, Marilyn Weidner; Venice-Madison Unit 307, Kate Buechele, Mary Hellingner, Norma Hillmer and Doreen Weiss; Highland Unit 439, Marie Pollard; from the Telephone Pioneers, Jim Douglas, Gen Grossheim, Rose Balhe, Bette Kelley and Ken Kelley.

Assisting on May 1 were:

Gateway BPW installs officers

The Gateway Business and Professional Women's organization installed its officers at the May meeting at Brenda's Restaurant on Old Alton Road.

The installing officers for the ceremony was JoAnn Sheppard, District XVI director and a member of the Edwardsville BPW.

Officers installed were: Shirley Rapoff, president; Ollie Derr, secretary; and Celestia Puryear, treasurer.

Rapoff's theme for the year 1993-94 will be for the club "To Grow More in 1994" personally, financially, and in membership. The club participates in community service and scholarship programs both on the state and national levels.

Ladies Club officers are re-elected

The Holy Family Ladies Club held its last meeting for the 1992-93 session on May 5.

Thirty-three members and guests, plus Father Bill Fisherkeller, Father Casey Kicmal, Father Tom Wise, Sister Angeline, Sister Margaret Mary, Sister Mary Stanley, and Sister Regina Marie, gathered at the Holy Family Community Center for a pot luck dinner. Fisher for the work done for the parish and extended his appreciation. He then led the meal prayer.

Sue Stanton, vice president, decorated the room and coordinated the event. Fried chicken was purchased from Jerry's Cafeteria. Members brought pot luck dishes to accompany the main course. A variety of potato salads, vegetables salads and casseroles, rice and pasta dishes were arranged at the buffet table. Cakes and pies were served for dessert along with punch and coffee.

After dinner a silent auction was held. Members brought useful items from home for others to bid on.

Nancy Ulahey, president, announced that the last chance to nominate new officers for next year was at this meeting. All current officers were nominated and voted in to serve another term. Officers are Nancy Ulahey, president; Sue Stanton, vice president; Cindy Ramey, secretary; and Pat Knollman, treasurer.

Prizes were then awarded to those in attendance. A flowering potted plant, which was used as a centerpiece at the buffet table, was awarded as a door prize to Gent Petty. Five dollar attendance awards were then given to Mary Zellmerman, JoAnn Zott, Helen Carmody, and Irene Makarewicz.

Members then settled in for 15 games of bingo. An assortment of flowering potted plants were awarded to winners: Pat Golbreith, Marge Stanton, Marge Greenwald, Shirley Jansen, Judy Bucatch, Juanita Rosenberg, Lucille Prewett, Mattie Sotiroff, Carol Makarewicz, Delores Hartzal, Sylvia Zabawa, and Helen Carmody.

Dinner, ritual ceremony for chapter

President Bea Brackett entertained Omicron Master Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at a dinner in her home on May 12. The Master ritual ceremony was held to honor Ruth Stoyanoff. Officiating were Imogene Forrest, Lora Lombardi and Delores Dorch. The yardstick committee met and Joyce Alexander announced the chapter would receive a three-star rating. Pat Tsigalaroff presented a gavel to retiring president Bea Brackett.

Can Pharmacist's discovery help food lovers lose weight?

WASHINGTON — "Depriving yourself of the foods you love to eat is no way to lose weight," says pharmacist Dr. William Morris, Director of National Dietary Research. Food lovers must learn that the secret to meaningful weight loss is not in decreasing the amount of food you eat, but in reducing hidden fats. NDR has introduced a publication and low fat, compact, chewable food tablet that help you to lose weight without giving up all your favorite foods. The publication is free when you purchase FOOD SOURCE ONE, an NDR breakthrough in nutritional weight control. FOOD SOURCE ONE is a nutritious and delicious pre-meal snack that can replace the high fat portion of your meals.

Although individual weight loss varies, some people are experiencing extraordinary results with FOOD SOURCE ONE. A Niagara Falls, New York woman lost 75 pounds without giving up chocolate and pizza which are two of her favorite foods.

Brownie Troop 945 of Prather School holds second Court of Honor

Brownie Troop 945 of Prather School held its second Court of Honor for the year in the school cafeteria.

Jennifer Mouser, Erica Van Hoose, Miranda Grizzard and Stephanie Yberra spelled out the word "flag" followed with the pledge of allegiance. Each girl had made a hat with the help of her family. They modeled the hats while music played in the background.

Scuba diving class offered at SIUE

Instruction in beginning scuba diving lessons will be offered at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville again this summer. Lessons will be held in Room 202 and the pool at the Vandalia Center, Sundays from 4 to 7:45 p.m., beginning June 27 and ending Aug. 1.

This course is in preparation for open-water certification. Two open-water dives are required to obtain certification. Registration is limited to SIUE students, faculty, staff and members of their immediate families.

Registration is $115 for students with identification and $165 for SIUE faculty and staff. The fee covers use of all equipment and open water equipment, textbook and dive tables.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Office of Continuing Education at 692-3210.

Winners were Amanda Griffin, most original hat; Kristina Way, funniest; and Chrystal Gerber, prettiest. Each participant received a certificate.

Receiving try-it patches for sports and games, play, dance, size, music, puppets and plays, Girl Scout ways and food were Amanda Gross, Amanda Griffin, Amanda Wylie, Miranda Grizzard, Chrystal Gerber, Amberly Rula, Stephanie Yberra, Erica Van Hoose, Kristina Way, Whitney Cornett and Jennifer Mouser.

Receiving festival of giving patches were Gross, Wylie, Grizzard, Rula, Yberra, Van Hoose, Way, Cornett and Mouser.

The girls performed a play entitled "Crazy Hats" using puppets they had made during troop meetings. "The Best Mother" play was performed by everyone.

Silk roses were presented to each mother. Each table had been decorated with vases made by the girls.

Punch and cookies were served by Nadene Taylor from a table containing an Easter egg tree and bunnies.

Certificates of appreciation went to Gary Mouser for making a puppet stage, Prather custodians for providing a helping hand and Pam Griffin and Melinda Lewis for assisting with meetings. The girls recited the "Golden Link of Girl Scouting."

Leaders are Dottie Mouser and Pat Foote.

Organizations plan barbecue Saturday

The Gateway Business and Professional Women's Organization and Society of Service, both not-for-profit, will sponsor together a benefit barbecue and bake sale Saturday, June 19, at the Belle-More Village Shopping Center on Nameoki Road in Granite City.

Pork steak dinners and sandwiches will be available from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dinners are a donation of $4, which include a pork steak, baked beans, and slaw. Sandwiches are available for $2.50.

This event will raise money for scholarships, agencies and groups in the area. In previous years donations have been made to DAR, Belleville College (GED test), Phoenix Crisis Center, Parents Plus, MADD, and scholarships for women of all ages.

MEMORIAL'S OUTPATIENT SURGERY CENTER... ...GOING BEYOND WHAT'S EXPECTED.

Most outpatient surgery centers can offer a shorter, less expensive stay. But at Memorial's Outpatient Surgery Center, that's just the beginning.

Memorial does things differently - and, we think, better.

Most outpatient surgery facilities group patients in a large "shared" room close to other patients for their care before and after surgery - allowing little or no privacy when you need to discuss personal medical concerns with your physician or nurse. Memorial's Outpatient Surgery Center sets new standards for others to follow by providing you with personalized care by exceptional nursing professionals in our 28 private areas - each with a TV and room for a family member to stay with you before and after surgery.

separate family waiting area, convenient adjacent parking and a drive-up entrance. Small conveniences, perhaps, but aren't these what we notice most?

When your physician recommends outpatient surgery, ask that it be performed at Memorial's Outpatient Surgery Center - where personalized caring, privacy, and convenience go beyond what's expected.

Horoscope

Everything is delightful confusion while Mercury opposes Neptune, unless you're a bawdy stock type. Relax and enjoy watching bosses, parents and get tangled in their own rules and regulations. Do be careful in traffic, and wait a few days before making speculative investments or drinking more than one glass of wine with dinner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Enjoy some special moments with the one who matters most. A family story can be wrested from close-meshed relative; at last, curiosity is satisfied. Big career decisions can wait until tomorrow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Hold to an idea you've got, but don't try to implement it yet. News of the world affects your law. Travel is possible, due to illness of an in-law. Legal points remain unclear but will soon be understood.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Burning the candle at both ends is unwise, but your energy level increases soon. Provide for the future by clearing away past errors and confusions. Strong relationships that last forever need nurturing now.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). A misunderstanding with mate can cause needless jealous feelings which hurt both of you, so play it very straight, and don't tease. A new friend is very impressed with your line of patter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Be kind to a friend who has a boring problem. Health is an important consideration, but don't worry about it. Find out facts. Prove your dependability on the job by staying with a problem-solving task.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 16). Let new friends help you find new ways and means in July. In August, the special efforts of a powerful acquaintance enable you to skip several steps on career path. Love waits, but not patiently, so make up your mind. New babies and job duties are the focus of November. You may be married in December; next January, a windfall sweetens financial pot.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Try out a new restaurant or store. Walks are calming. Pay little attention to rumors; wait until you're sure before fretting. A woman may be so smitten that it embarrasses shy little you. Let Libra help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Exceptions to the rule are sometimes necessary. It's best to watch and wait regarding a job promotion; what you hear today means little. Diplomacy comes naturally to you; use it to mediate family disputes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Strive for unity in all your co-worker relationships; factionalism works against you. By the time workplace gossip gets to you, the story has been completely distorted. Loyalty is your biggest contribution now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Don't be surprised if appointments are delayed or a check doesn't arrive. It's just a little confusion and will pass quickly. Routine is pleasantly interrupted, but watch for errors made in details.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Relax, and let your mate do most of the work. You're daydreaming, so write in your diary instead of driving through traffic. A talkative pal makes it easy to pass time listening quietly. Aries loves you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The diagnosis of a hard-to-understand health problem brings great relief. Reasons are clear for past behavior of family, too. It's easy to be too impressed with fast talker at work, withhold judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Kids come first. Try using your best jokes to help a friend through a blue mood. Give consideration to new ideas in your workplace; constant adjustment to advancing technologies is the new way of the world.

Danson, Goldberg lack chemistry

By Harry Hämmer
Correspondent

The purchase of sperm for artificial insemination is the central comedy element of "Made in America," a one-joke movie set in San Francisco that plays like a stretched-out sitcom.

Whoopi Goldberg stars as Sarah Matheve, the single mother of a 20-year-old daughter, Zora, played by Nia Long. Will Smith appears as Nia's boyfriend, Tea Cake Walters.

That name is not a coincidence. When Zora discovers she is the offspring of artificial insemination, she and Tea Cake head for the sperm bank. With Tea Cake posing as a donor, Zora breaks into a computer room and discovers whose sperm her mother purchased.

It seems "dad" is a local Caucasian car dealer named Hal Jackson, played by Ted Danson, whose television commercials usually pair him with a bear or a monkey.

"Made in America" might be more enjoyable if it weren't so predictable and false. Danson and Goldberg may get on in real life, but onscreen, their chemistry is bland, like most of this movie.

Rated PG-13 (profanity and sexual situations). Running time: 110 minutes.

Click, Click, Whistle, Squeal, Wheeop!

Foreign students at BAC to become teachers

Foreign students attending Belleville Area College this fall will have the unique opportunity to not only learn the English language but also to teach area school children about their native lands and customs.

The new program, titled "One World," will be administered by BAC's Adult Education Department and will be funded through a mini-grant from the Belleville Area College Foundation.

The BAC Foundation, a non-profit organization that raises funds for the college, recently announced its list of mini-grant recipients for 1993. The Foundation awards the mini-grants on an annual basis to BAC faculty and staff members.

The awards are based on several criteria, including the number of students who would benefit from the grant and the excellence and/or creativity of the grant proposal. The 1993 mini-grants total more than $36,000 to date and go to BAC faculty and staff in the following areas: adult education, learning resources, human resources, public safety, special services, data processing, and Programs and Services for Older Persons.

Grants in the Fine Arts area will be awarded in July. "One World" will take students from BAC's English as a Second Language program and send them to area elementary schools to speak with children about their countries, traditions and customs.

Mary Mueller, coordinator of the ESL program, believes that "One World" will broaden the horizons of everyone involved.

"Many of these elementary students, especially the ones who live in the small towns, have limited contact with people from another country," Mueller said. "It will also give the ESL students a chance to practice and improve their English." Mueller hopes the ESL students will speak at about 10 schools. An exact list won't be known until this fall, when Mueller finds out how many ESL students will take part in the program.

BAC's College for Kids set to begin again

Area school children from kindergarten through eighth grade looking for a different way to spend their summer vacation will find many interesting and challenging activities at Belleville Area College's College for Kids, which will be held over the next several weeks at all three BAC campuses in Belleville, Granite City and Red Bud.

College for Kids is a weeklong program that offers students the opportunity to participate in many unique and educational activities.

A wide variety of class topics are offered, ranging from creative chemistry and robotics to acting and art. To register, or for more information on the types of classes offered, call 1-800-BAC-5131, ext. 388 or ext. 540.

College for Kids will be offered at the Granite City Campus for four consecutive weeks, beginning June 28.

good pitching, and despite the game being closer than I would have liked, I have to say I'm happy, with our all-around effort."

The Junior Triplets showed their strength — pitching deep in the sweepstakes, four pitchers in the contest.

The starter, Tieman, was able to go only 2½ innings, allowing five runs on five walks and two hits, but Scott Geskie was able to keep the Junior Triplets in the game and put Stagman in position to gain the save.

"Stagman has to be our No. 1 pitcher right now with the way he's bringing the ball," Lignoul said. "As a team, we're very comparable to the squad we had last year — which was very competitive — with the exception of having even better pitching."

Lignoul also said Tri-City has more versatility with a team full of multi-dimensional players.

"We have a bunch of players who can play two and three and four positions," he said. "It makes coaching so much easier when the players are ready and willing to do whatever you ask of them whenever you ask it."

Wallace, who was playing his first game with the Eagles since returning from the College World Series as Oklahoma State's catcher, had his problems with Dickerson but got the hit that Granite City needed. He had grounded out to third and struck out twice in his three previous at-bats.

"We've got a good ballclub this year, and Joe is really a nice addition," DePew said. "We haven't been scoring runs, but there's no other guy I'd rather have out there than Darin in a game like this."

Hendrickson, who has given up only three earned runs in 35 innings, had to work out of a tough spot in the eighth. Fiala singled to right and after pinch-hitter Chris Crowder flew out to center, Standley singled, sending Fiala to second.

Nance flew out to right and pinch-hitter Randy Ripplemeyer walked to load the bases. Scott Brown then drew a base on balls to make the score 3-2. But No. 9 batter Brian Parmelait hit a chopper to third for a force out, which ended the game.

Hendrickson, who seemed to be tiring, got the job done after disputing several calls with the home plate umpire. The former Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville hurler gave up one hit and drew in five runs and four walks. He struck out two.

"Sometimes Darin gets fired up and sometimes he gets upset," DePew said. "But he was around the plate all day. He really digs down with the game in the line."

The second game was over in a hurry for Saugat. Granite City played two runs in the first and second innings and five more in the third before getting a single tally in the fourth.

Fiala shut out Saugat on four hits and drew in five runs with three hits of his own.

"Jason pitched his best game of the year," Fiala said. "This was his fifth outing of the year and without a doubt he had his best stuff. He's really rounding into form."

"We had our chances to win the game in regulation, but we didn't hit in the clutch situations," said Fiala, the Saugat manager. "You have to give part of the blame to Hendrickson. He's one of the best pitchers in the league. That's why they're in first place and we're in last."

The game went to the eighth inning after both teams could not take advantage of one-out singles in the seventh.

The Eagles' Mike Nordstrom drew a walk to open the eighth and Spotsnik sacrificed him to second. Dickerson appeared as if he might get out of the inning after Tim Hogan lined out to center field. But Hogan's twin brother Jamie, who was called out on strikes his two previous times at bat, sliced a run-scoring double to right-center field.

Dickerson then walked John Moad, setting up Wallace's RBI single. Fiala lifted Dickerson in favor of Ray Yeager, who got the final out of the inning.

ball and cut down Standley at the plate. Wallace, the Eagle catcher, then threw to Harshany at third and he relayed to Hogan to get Nance, who was trying to take third.

Dickerson set down the next seven men he faced before DePew led off the Granite City fifth with a bloop double to right. But Dickerson, who kept the Eagle hitters off balance all day with a variety of off-speed pitches, got out of the inning after Bob Spotsnik flew out to right.

"THE WIZARDS wasted a lead-off double in their half of the fifth, and they had their best chance to win in the sixth but they couldn't push across the winning run."

Boehlow led off the sixth with a double and took third following Standley's groundout to second base. Hendrickson then walked Nance intentionally and got out of the jam as Trade grounded into a 6-3 double play.

"We had our chances to win the game in regulation, but we didn't hit in the clutch situations," said Fiala, the Saugat manager. "You have to give part of the blame to Hendrickson. He's one of the best pitchers in the league. That's why they're in first place and we're in last."

"Jason pitched his best game of the year," Fiala said. "This was his fifth outing of the year and without a doubt he had his best stuff. He's really rounding into form."

"We had our chances to win the game in regulation, but we didn't hit in the clutch situations," said Fiala, the Saugat manager. "You have to give part of the blame to Hendrickson. He's one of the best pitchers in the league. That's why they're in first place and we're in last."

The game went to the eighth inning after both teams could not take advantage of one-out singles in the seventh.

The Eagles' Mike Nordstrom drew a walk to open the eighth and Spotsnik sacrificed him to second. Dickerson appeared as if he might get out of the inning after Tim Hogan lined out to center field. But Hogan's twin brother Jamie, who was called out on strikes his two previous times at bat, sliced a run-scoring double to right-center field.

Dickerson then walked John Moad, setting up Wallace's RBI single. Fiala lifted Dickerson in favor of Ray Yeager, who got the final out of the inning.

"Jason pitched his best game of the year," Fiala said. "This was his fifth outing of the year strikes. We wanted to jump on them early."

Lignoul said he was not sure how Winfield would respond after a long layoff.

Winfield struck out the side in the second inning before giving up a run on two walks in the third. He held Bethalto scoreless in the fourth, but he gave up another walk and appeared to be tiring.

"Winfield didn't pitch that much this spring, and he was getting tired," Lignoul said. "For being laid off so long, I think he did a terrific job. He pitched great."

SO DID THE Tri-City relievers, who allowed just two base-runners, in the final three innings. After Dickerson struck out four of the seven batters he faced, Rieser came on to close the seventh.

Rieser, who appears to be gaining confidence as the team's short reliever, struck out three of the four batters he faced. The other hitter, Chris Blevins, reached on an error.

"I thought that was about the hardest Joe has thrown this year," Lignoul said. "He came out firing."

"Corey Dickerson continues to do what you expect of him. It's almost unreal, the way he's pitched."

BETHALTO MANAGED only one hit out of the infield, a first-inning fly out to center by Darrell Osland. Joe Martin scored Bethalto's only run in the third by drawing a walk, stealing second, advancing to third on a wild pitch and scoring on a wild pitch.

That cut Tri-City's lead to 5-1.

but the Triplets added two more runs in the fourth. Maxfield and Winfield opened the inning with singles and both scored.

Winfield said one reason the Triplets' pitchers have been so successful is the team's run production. Last week, Dickerson was the winning pitcher in a 13-3 win over Cahokia and Ben Hicks got the win in a 13-0 rout over Wood River.

"If we score some runs with our pitching staff, I think we can win some games," Winfield said. "We're playing pretty well."

TRI-CITY appears to have as much pitching depth as the Warrior baseball team did this spring. Dickerson, Hicks and Rieser, the top three starters for Granite City High School, have all come out for the team.

"We were kind of worried that we wouldn't have much," Winfield said. "But with the pitchers we have, it makes it a lot easier on the young guys."

Tri-City will have two games to make up from last weekend. Friday's home game against Roxana was called because of rain, and Saturday's home game against Belleville was rescheduled because the Belleville West baseball team was playing at the IHSAA state tournament.

Tri-City entered the week with a schedule of five games in five days. The Triplets were scheduled to play Marissa at home Tuesday, Alton at home Wednesday, at Collinsville on Thursday and Waterloo at home Friday.

up the rear: "I've never been so scared," Stieve said. "I'd rather go up against Dan Hampton, Randy White or Dick Butkus than do this."

An estimated crowd of 2,000 watched as the professional drivers and former NFL players performed for more than four hours. Tri-City owner and operator Bob Wente said things went as well as expected.

"I THINK this was good for the sport," Wente said. "This was good for the fans, too."

"I think the NFL guys' eyes were opened up to the sport a little. This was a little longer than normal, but we might have gotten a few new people out here because of this. I know we had a lot of families tonight."

Outrigger canoe trips featured on Hawaiian tours

As early as 1000 B.C. the Polynesians embarked from the Marquesas Islands on organized explorations of uncharted and unknown waters of the South Pacific.

Their journeys continued for another 1500 years during which the islands of Hawaii were accidentally discovered. After the Polynesians settled the Hawaiian Islands, their quest for new lands slowed.

The outstanding achievement of extensive oceanic exploration was brought about by the development of an "ocean-going" canoe which later developed into the "outrigger" canoe after the settlement of the Hawaiian Islands.

The construction of the unique outrigger pontoon made this small vessel stable enough for rough waters. The tall, hard keels available in the forests of the Big Island made it possible to build a one-hulled canoe from one piece of wood. This development allowed inter-island transportation to flourish.

Outrigger canoes became absolutely vital to the life style of the Hawaiian people.

It was their link to the other islands for trade, fishing, socialization, warfare and survival. The outrigger canoe today represents not only a means of sport and transportation but also provides an historic link through time to ancient Hawaii and its culture.

The ceremonies of canoe building and the skills of utilizing ancient tools have been passed down from generation to generation in the form of Hawaiian chants and hulas since no written language existed. This practice remains an integral part of Island life.

Several times a year, grueling canoe races are held between islands. Hundreds of men and women, comprising dozens of canoe teams, take the challenge of the ocean, testing their speed and endurance to race from Moikali to Oahu.

Readers have two opportunities to visit Hawaii with the Journal Tours this winter, in December for the Christmas in Hawaii tour, and again in February for the annual Grand Tour, which will be hosted by Anne Keefe.

Although one or two details have kept the brochures from being distributed, "early bird" reservations have already been accepted on both tours. Brochures are expected to be available shortly.

For information and reservations on any of the Grand Tours, contact Tenholder Travel at 800-333-5910 in St. Louis or a Visa World Travel Independent Agent.

The Journal Grand Tours will also visit Alaska, Scandinavia, the Greek Islands, and Australia and New Zealand during the next 18 months.

Journal travelers approach Waikiki Beach in one of the many for-hire outrigger canoes.

WE NEED YOU!

And you may need us.

The U.S. Olympic Festival '94 needs established volunteer groups to sell official 1994 Festival merchandise at five mall locations beginning July 1993. Other responsibilities include inventory cash/control and information dissemination. Flexible staffing hours for the merchandise centers are available.

Participating groups will receive a number of benefits:

- Percentage of sales
- Substantial discount on 1994 Festival merchandise
- Opportunity to purchase 1994 Festival tickets before made available to the public.
- Display of organizational signage at retail site.

Sales will continue through June 30, 1994. The 1994 Festival, to be held in the Metropolitan Area of St. Louis and Southwestern Illinois July 1-10, 1994, is the country's largest and most prestigious multi-sport event for amateur athletes. It serves as a primary vehicle to develop U.S. Olympic teams.

New SIUE Art and Design Building scheduled to open July 30

Project and budget approval for the installation of equipment in the new Art and Design Building at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville was granted recently by the SIUE Board of Trustees.

The $5 million building, located west of the Religious Center on the SIUE campus, is scheduled to open July 30. Estimated cost of the project is $175,000. The Board approved the selection of AAI/Campbell Inc., Collinsville, to provide architectural and engineering services for equipment installation. The project includes the installation of utility connections, fume and dust collectors, control, casework, counters, and associated fixtures in the Art and Design Building.

The work is necessary to move and install existing fixed equipment now at the Wagner Complex in Edwardsville, where the department of art and design has had facilities for nearly 30 years.

The project also provides for the installation of new equipment.

Funds for the installation will come from state appropriations allocated for the relocation project.

Courthouse, museum bring history alive for children

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

The St. Louis area played a significant part in the development of this country. Yet many area children spend their school time studying the history of distant places and learn little or nothing about what happened right here where they live.

St. Louis area parents can take an active role in teaching their children about their rich heritage.

Here is a story about the history of St. Louis to share with your children and suggestions for places to visit to learn more on this topic.

The city of St. Louis was founded when Pierre Laclede came up the Mississippi River from New Orleans to establish a fur trading post.

He started at the confluence of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers and walked south on the western side of the river until he found a spot suitable for his city.

The location had fresh water, high ground to protect it from flooding, plenty of trees for building material — but not so many that clearing the land would be difficult — and natural breaks in the river bluffs to give easy access to the riverfront. The spot he chose is underneath the Arch.

Laclede then returned to his winter quarters and the following February of 1764 he sent a building crew to begin building the new city. Auguste Chouteau, who was 13 or 14 years old at the time, was in charge of this building crew.

The early settlers in the new city of St. Louis were French citizens and earned their living in the fur trade. The most valuable skin was beaver fur due to a demand for beaver-skin hats in Europe at that time.

The first houses in St. Louis were made of timber and stone quarried from the river bluffs with a crowbar and sledgehammer. The houses were square and divided into two or three rooms. Smaller houses had one room that was used for living, sleeping and dining. Many houses had a separate shed for cooking.

These settlers were not farmers and grew only what they needed to feed themselves. Their gardens had corn, potatoes, turnips, pumpkins, melons, wheat, peas, beans, cabbages, beets and carrots. They hunted wild game and fished to feed their families. Livestock provided beef, milk and butter, and poultry were kept for fresh eggs.

Entertainment consisted of billiards, cards and pony races for the men and fiddling, dancing and gossiping for the women. Saturday night was party night. They frequently danced until midnight, stopped to eat and then danced again until dawn.

Places to visit to learn more: • The Old Courthouse: One of the exhibit halls details the founding of St. Louis and shows how the early settlers lived and worked.
